

Bobcat excavators bound for Samoter

Written by Steve Ducker - 18 Jan 2017

Doosan Bobcat will be showing a growing range of micro-excavators, mini-excavators and wheeled loaders at next month's Samoter exhibition in Italy - including a new small excavator model.

The group said it has great expectations for the Italian market in the short term and has invested in new initiatives, infrastructure and production facilities. It has also expanded its workforce dedicated to serving Europe and key markets in the Middle East and Africa.

Some of the new models on display at Verona come from the Dobris Centre for Innovation in the Czech Republic, the group's European centre of excellence for the design and development of compact loaders and excavators from 1 to 3 t, which closely coordinates its work with the group's other centres in the United States and Korea.